ILLINOIS COLLEGE
JACKSONVILLE ILLINOIS

F O R E W O R D

A foreword is one of those inevitable things like death and taxes, or oysters in November. It is for the readers of this volume to judge for themselves.

To the staff, administration and entire student body we are greatly indebted. Without their cooperation this book would not have been possible. We offer no alibis, promises—only hopes that you will like our 1938 Rig.

DEDICATION

Any transplanting is a difficult task and to the Hudsons who came to Illinois College and competently assumed the arduous duties as "first family of the campus," we respectfully dedicate this volume of the 1938 Rig.

In Memoriam

GERALD UNDERBRINK

May 10, 1918—November 25, 1937

We pause to pay our respects to one whose presence on the campus lent a cheery note to our college atmosphere. Jerry's untimely death last winter saddened the hearts of those who knew him as a speaking acquaintance, as well as the many who were his intimate friends. He was active on the hill, being a member of the Glee Club and the Octette. But, more important, he had that type of winning personality which draws only friendly affection and sympathetic understanding. May he know that we miss him. May he rest in peace.

To the Students of Illinois College:

Another splendid year in the history of our College is coming to an end. Your achievements on the field and in the pool, on the stage and on the platform, have made a notable record, while our graduates have continued to win new honors for us. Your accomplishments are fittingly commemorated in this book which in years to come will bring to mind old friends and great deeds. I congratulate you and wish you all success.

DAY DREAM . . .

We sit and we listen to the chatter, chatter, chatter
Of our various instructors upon educative matter
That, emerging from the doorways in a sort of ceaseless humming,
Runs in together in an incoherent
Chatter;
And the silence of the hallways, at the coming of the latter,
Slips behind the echos and a flatter kind of drumming.
We sit and we listen to the clatter that is coming
From the teachers, and the echos and the humming,
And the drumming,
Of the latter;—
And we think . . . (as they say) . . . or, we dream . . . far away . . .

Crispy and brown is the campus in Fall,
And white in December, remember?
It spreads its spring blanket of green over all,
To slumber from June to September.

To slumber . . . to slumber, the campus—so green,
So dreamily lonesome 'til autumn; and then
It lifts its fair eyelids, still drowsy, serene,
For laughter and joy and living again.

It awakens for you, yet I'll see it in sleep;
Hear it softly inhale the sweet scented breeze.
Once, twice, it will stir to a memory deep,
And a whispering murmur will pass through the trees.

Then, one day you'll come back, and a shivering shock
Through the campus will course, I have seen it before.
And suddenly all (except Sturtevant's clock)
Will be smoothly and actively running once more.

And once again we'll sit and we'll listen to the chatter
Of our various instructors upon educative matter.
And once again the hallways, with the same incessant humming,
Will echo to the classrooms whence the ceaseless clatter's coming;
And once again we'll dream . . . and our thoughts will drift anew
To tomorrow . . . (and tomorrow we will still be dreaming too).

The class of 1938 entered Illinois College one hundred and sixty strong, comprising the largest class in the history of the college prior to 1934.

Though their number has dwindled in the last four years, they can be proud of the record maintained by the class as a unit and by outstanding individuals among its members.

Early in their careers the men of this class became distinguished for their athletic skills. Not a few of them are stars and have been awarded varsity captaincies. Women athletes among the seniors have performed creditably also.

Versatility is one of the striking features of the 1938 senior class of Illinois. Debaters, athletes, scholars and socially efficient persons among them have contributed in bringing laurels to Old Illinois. One member of the class, Charles Lockhart, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year.

The members of this class who are about to leave the campus look upon it as their home for four years. Here they did their first real democratic living; here they began developing their deepest interests as tools for life; here they struggled against, and, in a large measure, solved the problems which all youth must meet; here they played and laughed and matured and now as they leave this place they find that its power has deeply affected every one of them.

In the fall of 1936 there came to Illinois College a group of freshmen, some dumber than others. They were well initiated into college life during Homecoming Week, which they survived without many scratches. By that time, the members of the freshman class had become individuals, whose early participation in all college activities showed that they were a promising class.

The class had several outstanding members. Bob Fay and Ed Johnston were on the team that won the Faculty-Debate Trophy. Earl Brown in his freshman year took the lead in a Dramatic Club play, and several members of the class were already showing fine promise as athletes.

In the sophomore year, having thrown off the lowly title of freshmen, the class of 1939 was in its glory, for it now had the upper hand over the freshmen. The members of the class were entering with new confidence and dignity into the affairs of the college. Under the direction of J. P. Smith, they held a successful dance, the Sophomore Cotillion. Several sophomore men gained much recognition for themselves in athletics: Herb Scheffler, Cecil Fletcher, Hartong, Lambert, McWard, Ballard, Zupisch, Corrigan, Kalteux, Timke, Bulthardt, Lorenz, Norton Foster and Guthrie Janssen were co-editors of the Rig in their sophomore year.

Last fall the class of 1939 came back to accomplish more than it ever had before. The Junior Prom was a big success, with Doris Scheffler as Prom Queen, and Dorothy Belcher, Ruth Kilton, Eleanor Baker, and Marion Wright as attendants. Harry Story was chairman of the prom. Also outstanding were Julian Rammelkamp and Bob Fay who were appointed editors of the 1939 Rambler.

We wish the class of 1939 all the success in the world in its senior year!

The sophomore class is proud of its reputation of being the most outstanding and cooperative group on the campus. This honor has been realized by the undivided attention and assistance offered the class by its sponsor, Dr. Hans Rosenberg, and by the officers the class has selected as its representatives.

For the past two years a brotherly attitude has existed among the sophomores which reflects true friendship and makes all class endeavors possible and successful. One sad event occurred when a member of the group was lost. Gerald Underbrink, a typical sophomore characterized by his friendliness and general activity, met death in an accidental and tragic manner, which brought sorrow to the whole college.

Being typical and active collegiates the sophomores enter into the realm of enjoyment with whole-hearted interest. This year they saw one of their members, Raymond "Sarge" Bartels, elected to the office of campus mayor, and rule the campus from the President's office for one day following the mock election.

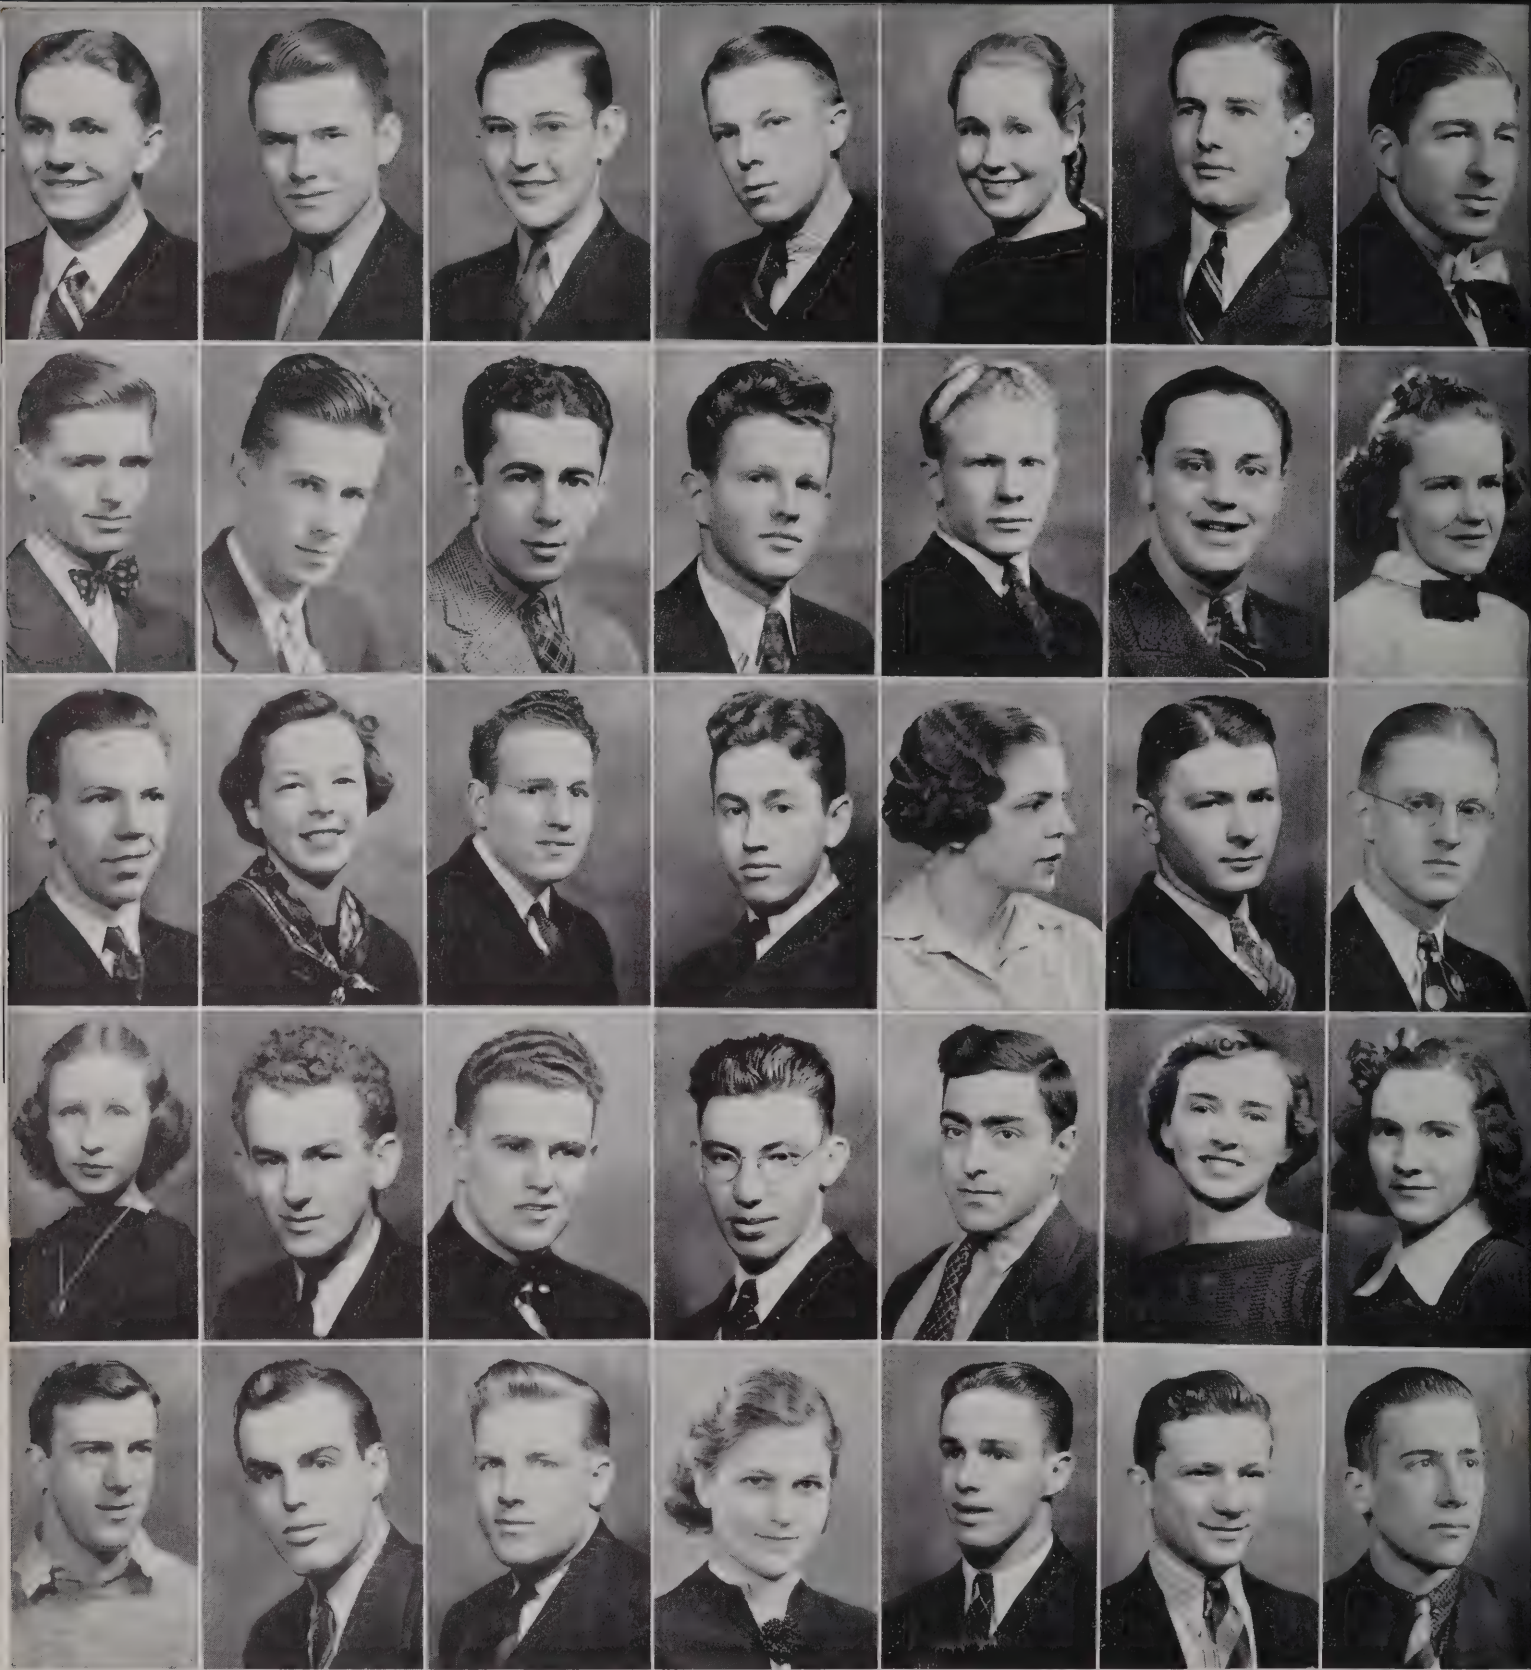

The social events culminated with the Sophomore Stomp, a dance which future sophomore classes intend to sponsor as an annual event. This brilliant affair was managed wholly by sophomores and carried out with great enthusiasm.

These two years have made the class of '40 an outstanding one and if success and cooperation continue, it will go down with other famous classes held so dear to the old college on the hill where tradition reigns.

In September, the freshman class, 140 in number, were introduced to Illinois College. The first few days before the return of the upper-classmen were given over to orientation. The All-College Mixer provided an excellent means for us to meet the faculty members and administration. Soon we were engulfed in a maze of studies, parties, dances and studies.

Extra-curricular activities rapidly assumed an important place in our college life. A sizeable squad reported to coach Ray Smith for freshman football. The team displayed promise of varsity material in their two conference tilts, a 13 to 0 loss to a strong Wesleyan eleven and a 6 to 0 triumph over a formidable Millikin aggregation. A large number of candidates also turned out for freshman basketball and a full season's schedule confirmed the rumors that several up-and-comers were in the offing. Two of our classmates, Marvin Bittenob and Virgil Isringhausen, found regular berths on the varsity baseball team while several others helped create a new era in track at Illinois College.

An unusually large number of our group competed for the George Gridley Wood prize in freshman debate. After months of careful preparation the final awards were given to Anthony Scariano, Bill Sullivan and Charles Manoogian.

The girls' literary society, Alpha Pi Eta, this year proved far more active than any of its predecessors. Sally Fraley was elected president for the first semester and Juanita Schroeder was chosen to head the group for the second term.

In the field of dramatics we also played a major role. Among those prominent in the cast of the second-semester play, "The Night of January 16th," were Doris Powell, Paul Mattson, Doris Broehl, Pari Zia-Walrath and Charles Manoogian.

After two weeks of hectic campaigning for the Revolutionary Party, "Mike" Keropian and Jack Alred were elected to the exalted offices of Sheriff and Dog Pursuer of the campus.

These have been our major activities for the past year and we believe we have made a good start. Bring on the future.

Dear Editors:

"Just write something about activities" . . . what an assignment! This whole book is about activities, and you wouldn't want us to hand in a review of the whole book, not with that one page limit you slapped on us. We (the author, in case you hadn't figured that out yet) might scribble some silly verse about it. That's about the extent of what the author (we) does (do). But what could a silly verse accomplish toward describing all those wonderful events coldly referred to as "extra-curricular activities?" Golly, those things are glamour, richness, glory, fun, romance . . . they're what makes the difference between just going to college and . . . well, really going to college. And how are you going to get that idea across by saying something like, "Football is a great sport here on the hill . . . basketball is a great sport here on the hill—"? Phooey! That doesn't say anything.

Don't you remember, editors, what a swell time we all had Homecoming? We were a little afraid of that game with Wesleyan, weren't we? But when the team scored the second touchdown, clinching the victory, do you remember how crazy we all went and how, when the game was over, we ran out onto the field and grabbed the nearest kid around the neck and pretty nearly cried into his face? Everybody felt so warm and good inside—well, it's that intangible feeling of good-fellowship and friendliness that football games, dances, open meetings, plays, and all the rest produce. That's what makes college such a swell place,—and you expect us to catch said feeling and put it down in black and white for posterity . . . for cryin' out loud!

Extra-curricular activities (my dear professor) form most of our college memories. Little things, like walking across the campus on a winter night and watching the dorm lights sparkle on the snow, or drinking a coke in the bookstore and wondering if you can afford to cut the next class—things like these, maybe you don't think of them as worthy of being classed with regular events. But you wait and see if you don't remember a lot of 'em to the exclusion of Bismarck, and what a trade acceptance is, and so forth. (Get the idea?)

This isn't to shun the big things. Remember the prom? We all went so stately and formal in tuxedos and evening dresses, and then finished up by sprawling on the floor trying to get the balloons that had been ceiling decorations until somebody started pulling on the strings to celebrate the last dance. We had fun at all the dances, from the prom to the "nickleodeons."

And the societies . . . betcha there's not a kid on the campus, among those who are in societies (as most are), who'll forget the arguments and the jokes and the swell times in his society hall. What a wonderful thing they are, these organizations. There's no way of telling how they enrich college life, how they add a whole new education to the curriculum. They just do, that's all. And all the guys and girls know it and appreciate it.

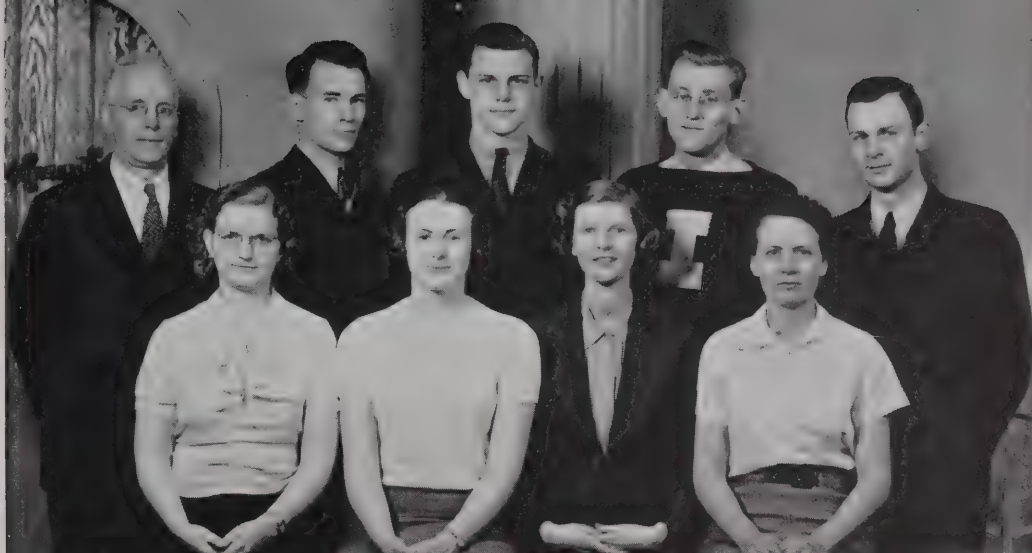

Don't you see, editors, what a crazy job it is to write "something about extra-curricular activities?" Why, there's the campus itself. Did you ever stroll down the shadowed walks at night and watch the moonbeams slip through the birch limbs? Did you notice how the open lawn seems to be bathed in a kind of shimmering, silvery brightness that stretches as far as it can to reach the grim walls of the buildings? Everything is so quiet somehow. The pillars on Tanner stand out a little bit from the shadows and keep watch over the whole beautiful, soft, campus world. They . . . what's that, editors? You say you never . . . you're all story tellers, we saw you last Tuesday, wasn't it? (Yes) Anyway, that's not the point. The point is that the campus is another reason for the fact that "Old Illinois" is so very, very fine. It's like . . . it's . . . well . . .

Well, gosh editors, it's just that all these things—athletics, dances, plays, societies, even moonlight on the campus—are real parts of college life. They contribute the filling and the seasoning and the richness and . . . and the everything that doesn't come out of the classroom. It's all kind of spiritual or something, but it's so darn real and important, too. Don't you see? You feel it, we all feel it, but "write something about extra-curricular activities" . . . gosh!

—Bill Clark.

Since the organization of the Forum in 1936, it has been an active link between students and faculty. Membership is drawn from both the men's and women's literary societies, non-society men and the faculty. A resume of the year's activities will show the wide scope of the Forum functions:

In response to a petition from the Athletic Board of Control, the Forum, in conjunction with the faculty, voted one-half of the profits of the Homecoming dance to aid spring athletics.

The choosing of Rig editors and business manager has been in the hands of the Forum for the past two years, and this year they have also had the supervision of the yearbook, a position formerly held by a faculty appointee.

At the December meeting, a petition for enlargement of the bookstore was approved and sent to the faculty for action.

Petitions from students led to a complete reorganization of the Social Committee, the aim of which was to diversify responsibility and to outline more specifically the individual duties. Unique in Forum history is this system of petitioning, which was planned with an eye to freer expression from the student body. Any subject concerning the college may be covered by the petitions.

THE RIG

We, the Editors, Business Manager, and the Staff of the 1938 Rig have worked hard to publish a yearbook that will live up to the high standards of the annuals which have preceded us.

Although we worked under the handicap of a shortage of time, the excellent cooperation of the administration and student body has greatly aided us in presenting this book.

Even more important was the excellent work of the entire staff in gathering together the vast amount of material necessary for the production of such a book. The Staff was wisely selected. Not confined by the restriction of allowing only upperclassmen to fill the positions, the editors were fortunate in having the cream of the entire student body from which to choose their workers.

We encountered various difficulties, the most important of which being the fact that Art Editor Santoorjian suffered a broken arm, but in spite of all our mishaps the job has been a lot of work and a lot of fun.

The Staff includes Editors Kitner and McCarthy, Business Manager Johnston, Jr. Editor Hallerberg, Jr. Business Manager Denis, and the following: Bennett, Wilton, Santoorjian, Massey, McCollum, Brockhouse, Manoogian, Fancher, Lane, Cordell, and Bartels.

Functioning under the leadership of Earl Wilson and Glenn Freeman, first and second semester presidents respectively, the Sigma Pi society enjoyed another outstandingly successful year in its long and colorful history. In December, the "Sigs" won the faculty debate trophy for the eighth time, getting the first victory on the new cup. Fay, Johnston, and Clark composed the winning team.

The annual open meeting drew a capacity audience to the society halls Thursday, April 21, for an entertaining program which included this year's edition of the "opera." The spring formal dance was again a great success and the year was climaxed by the love feast during Commencement week.

Sigma Pi continued to be well represented in other campus activities, members of the society serving as officers of classes and clubs and holding editorial positions on the Rambler staff. Rawson Moore, first semester secretary of the society, was co-editor of the college newspaper, Rammelkamp and Fay, the newly appointed co-editors, both being "Sigs." Hartong and McWard, co-captains of next year's football team, are both members of Sigma Pi.

The society, oldest on the hill, has followed its program of developing in its members a taste and talent along literary lines, and is looking forward to its centennial celebration in 1943.

In the fall of 1845 a literary society was born on the campus of Illinois College. Lovers of Truth, the name the "Immortal Seven" gave the organization which they founded, exists today much as it was when first organized, clinging to the same ideals, and characterized by a "refreshing independence and individual freedom."

Phi Alpha Literary Society is performing an important work on the campus of Illinois College today, in the field of literary and dramatic art, and in supplying the means whereby students are brought together fraternally to strive onward and upward in search of elusive Truth.

The organization is high in scholastic ranking, and its reputation as a leader in school activities is unquestioned among other campus organizations. In debate and in campus politics Phi Alpha is sharing laurels with other literary societies, gaining its portion of class officers and debate decisions.

With Sam Manigeri as president for the first semester and Roger Prosise leading the society the second semester, Gamma Nu enjoyed an exceptionally prominent position on the campus this year. Versatility was shown as the society participated in all of the extra-curricular activities on the hill. Gamma Nu men took outstanding roles in dramatics, music, and debate.

Gamma Nu men held the presidency of each of the four classes during the first semester, along with the chairmanship of the Social Committee, chairmanship of the Junior Prom, and co-chairmanship of the Senior Ball.

The society also figured prominently in the field of athletics, placing fourteen members on the championship football squad, and having members as captains of the championship swimming team, and the baseball, golf, tennis, and track teams. The intramural basketball championship was won by the society for the second consecutive year.

Improvements in the Old Clubhouse have transformed the Hall into one of the most attractive on the campus. Acquisition of Venetian blinds and indirect lighting fixtures were among the conspicuous additions.

The annual Open Meeting was held April 22, a large audience being entertained by an excellent program. The annual spring formal was held at the Country Club Saturday, May 14, and the Society Love Feast is to be held June 11.

Under the excellent leadership of President Harriett Cordell first semester, and Jean Campbell second semester, Gamma Delta experienced a successful year in social events and intellectual activities.

In September, Gamma Delta led the entire school in scholastic standing and continued with a high average throughout the year.

Her programs were filled with travelogues, short biographical sketches, book reviews, and a one-act play for the year 1937-38, which helped greatly to broaden the interests of the members.

The society presented a group of social activities, which began with a wiener roast held October 3, followed by the annual open meeting for freshman girls, a Christmas party, a benefit bridge, and the formal tea and rush party in the early spring. A formal initiation and supper was held for the sixteen new members at the Dunlap Hotel in September, and the annual spring formal was held at the Country Club on May 7. The year ended with the traditional love feast at the Colonial Inn during Commencement week.

It was Gamma Delta's honor this year to have as members such students as Helen Kitner, Co-editor of the Rig; Doris Scheffler, Junior Prom Queen; and Jean Campbell, Co-editor of the Illinois College Rambler for the year 1937-38.

This year was a successful one both socially and scholastically for Sigma Phi Epsilon. After the formal installation of officers for the first semester and the initiation of new members, the Sigma Phi calendar of activities was filled with program meetings, teas, and such enjoyable affairs as the Homecoming and Christmas "cozies." This year's literary programs developed a keen interest in contemporary plays and their authors. Scholastically, Sigma Phi Epsilon ranked high, being second in the scholastic ranking of all the societies the first semester. Four new upperclass members, three of them transfers, were taken into membership. During the year, Sigma Phi Epsilon was entertained by Mrs. Lacey, Mrs. Rosenberg, and Mrs. Busey. Mrs. Hudson was hostess to the society for the semi-annual formal installation of officers. In March, two outstanding events occurred—Amy Schroeder was chosen Queen of the Carnival, and the society held a most successful bridge. The spring rushing season began with an Open Meeting in February, followed by a tea in March, and selected freshmen were entertained by Sigma Phi Epsilon in April at their rush party. The society's most important social affair of the year, the spring formal, was staged at the Country Club April 29. The Love Feast will be held during Commencement week in June.

The Chi Beta Literary Society, the smallest group on the campus, succeeded in meriting first place in the scholastic ranking for societies this year. The officers for the year were: First semester, president, Lenore Black; vice president, Joyce James; secretary, Virginia Tunnell; treasurer, Irene Chapman. Second semester, president, Joyce James; vice president, Rilda Rocci; secretary, Catherine O'Rourke; treasurer, Virginia Tunnell.

Chi Beta held to a purely literary theme this year and followed the plan of reviewing the latest books, giving accounts of the authors' lives, and criticisms of the books. After these reports, "round table" discussions were held in which everyone had the opportunity of asking questions and contributing his own opinions and suggestions; in this way the society members were given some knowledge of all the latest books which otherwise they might not have gained, had time not permitted the reading of all the latest works.

Social events of the year included: An alumni tea during Homecoming week; honorary members' tea at Thanksgiving time; the open meeting for the freshmen girls, carrying out the Christmas theme; an Easter "rush" tea, attended by all freshman girls, April 10, 1938. The season's events culminated with a formal rush party and the society's Annual Love Feast in June.

Thirty-two freshman girls met for the first time in a group October 8, in the home of Miss Margaret Elliott. These girls, still comparative strangers to each other, were organized that evening into the Alpha Pi Eta society of 1937-38. They have made a name for themselves as one of the most active and progressive literary societies on the campus. They have proved their ability and versatility as business women—socialites—and all-around college students. They have displayed a fine spirit of cooperation. In short, they have been a loyal, well-organized body that has gone places and done things. Their first social event was a wiener roast October 16. Then an informal dance at the home of Elizabeth Hudson. Their two outstanding and successful business ventures were their rummage sale, February 17, and their bingo party, April 9. The social highlight of the freshman society was its formal held at the Country Club, May 13.

The Women's Inter-Society Board serves as a council to regulate the functions of the women's literary societies. Its membership consists of three members from each of the societies, including their presidents. As the chief factor of administrative contact between the societies, the Board was active this year in deciding upon the nature of rush events, entertainments, and dates for these events.

Made up of the presidents of all women's societies, organizations, and dormitories, the Women's Council, headed by Helen Kitner, is a group whose aim is the uniting of all the Illinois College women into close bonds of friendship.

The Feast of the Triangle, in October, and a Christmas party for underprivileged children were the outstanding activities of the year.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

SUNDERLAND, KITNER, McCOLLUM, BROWNING, SIEFKIN

Campus social life is directed by the Social Committee, which has indirect supervision over all college social functions—dances, parties, date nights, etc. This year, under the chairmanship of Earl Brown for the first semester, and Charles McCollum for the second, the Committee successfully put over the Freshman Party and the All-College Mixer at the beginning of the year, and was largely responsible for the success of such outstanding events as the Homecoming celebration and dance, the Leaf Raking Festivities, and the dances in honor of the successful football, basketball, and swimming teams.

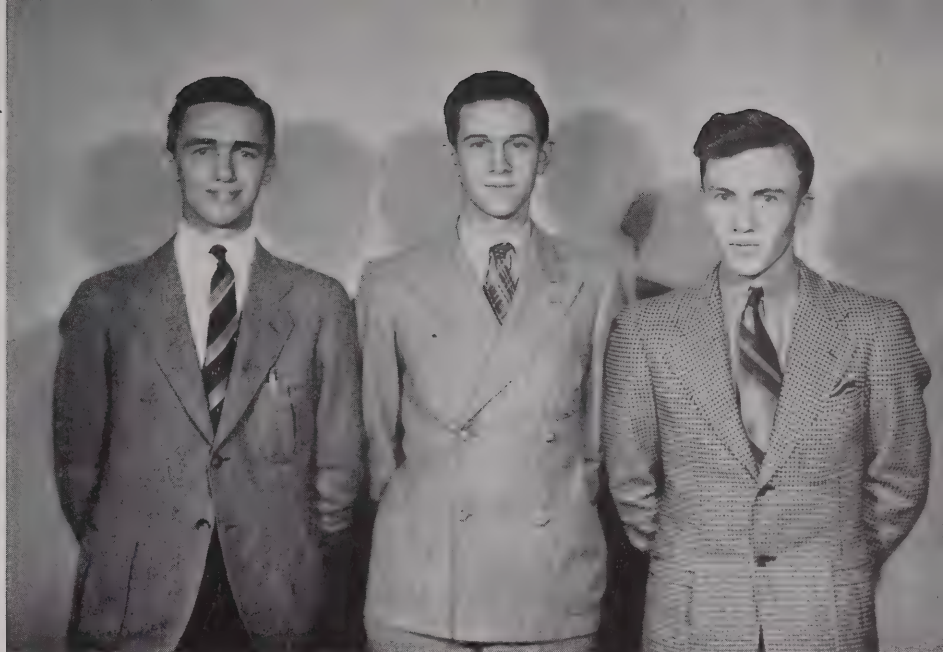

The band, organized this year, under the direction of Elbert Edelbrock '40, has won much admiration by enthusiastic work. A number of public appearances were made. With proceeds from the Carnival Dance, sponsored by the band, and gifts from friends, this organization is almost self-supporting and prospects are bright for next year's band.

FAY, JOHNSTON, CLARK

The men's varsity debate council this year climaxed a successful season by sending five men on the most extensive speaking tour undertaken by any I. C. team in recent years. The trip, lasting ten days, covered twenty-four hundred miles in eleven southern states. The main objective was the Grand Eastern Tournament at Rock Hill, South Carolina.

The season also included debates with Millikin, Bradley, Carthage, Washington U., Union University of Tennessee and several others.

Varsity women debaters, Jeanne Rantz and Catherine O'Rourke made a trip to St. Louis April 24, to participate in a debate at Washington University.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Helen Brown Read, the Women's Chorus had a very successful season. The twenty-five girls began their work by taking part in the Founders' Day program in November. Later on, they sang at local churches and on the radio broadcasts from the campus. The annual concert in Baxter Hall on May 18 closed the season for the group.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Paul Thompson as director, Frank Malinasky as president, and Earl Wilson as business manager, the Dramatic Club started out last fall with the express purpose in mind of financing the renovation of the Little Theatre. The program for the year called for two groups of one acts in the fall and early winter: "His Second Girl," "Everannie," "The Unicorn and the Fish," "The Boor," "Afraid of the Dark," "Who's the Cleverest," and "The Night of January 16th."

"The Night of January 16th," a murder-trial story, was presented to capacity houses for two nights at the Morgan County Courthouse, and created so much enthusiasm that it was taken to the county seats of this part of the state for presentation. The club voted to do this play at Belleville for charity purposes when the tornado hit that town.

The club is high in its praises for Mrs. Thompson and is now cooperating to the fullest degree with her in the presentation of the annual Shakespearean play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The Board of Athletic Control, composed of Dr. Hudson, Dr. Stratton, Dr. Oxtoby, Dr. Krumboltz, Professor Van Meter, Miss Thompson, Miss Denny, George Evans, Ira Clark, Joe Doyle, Dick Korevec, and Chairman Rawson Moore, met nine times during the year 1937-'38, to deal with matters ranging from approval of the budget of athletic expenditures to the replacement of the Millikin goalposts, removed by local after-the-game celebrants.

During the year the board voted on all athletic awards, approved the budgets both for the year '37-'38 and '38-'39, assumed liability for accidents incurred by travelling athletes, discussed hospital and car insurance, financed conference trips by the swimming, tennis and golf teams, sought means of providing for maintenance of an intercollegiate track team, donated medals to the I Club charter members, approved sale of season baseball tickets at reduced rates, paid for wanton damage to college buildings, and in general acted to provide a full athletic program at a minimum of expense.

The first meeting of the Women's Athletic Association of Illinois College was a pot luck supper served at the David A. Smith House, and was open to all college women interested in athletics. A talk was presented by Miss Thompson, who explained the purpose of the W.A.A. after which games were played.

A nominating committee was appointed and after Chapel on the following Tuesday presented their list of candidates for those present to vote on. Those elected were: President, Mary Pinkerton; vice president, Noima Denny; secretary, Helen Rehak. An Advisory Board, made up of officers and sports managers, carried out the athletic program for the year. In addition to arranging the sports program, the Advisory Board revised the Constitution, the Point System and sponsored two very successful Play Days—one in the fall for the freshmen and an All-College Sports Day in the spring.

Beginning last fall when the I Club was reorganized in order to promote better interest in a football team that got off to a season's start with not enough men to form a first eleven, the Varsity Club of Illinois College has proved itself this year to be one of the most ambitious and cooperative student organizations on the hill.

Through its organization of student rallies and later through its financial backing of a student band, it laid the foundation for a school year that was to be exceptional for spirit. To the I Club must go the credit for being the first organization that deemed it worthwhile to invest money in the newly formed school band.

Realizing that a championship football team was a fine source of publicity, the club financed several non-members of the campus body for the latter's expenses in sending out news stories to the papers throughout the state.

Then, in rapid succession, came the Barn Dance, the aid that the I Club gave in the High School I.R.C., the aid given the band in the Carnival Dance, and finally the backing of the track team. For a long time the students of Illinois College had given up their hopes of having a track team, until the I Club came through with an appropriation that made the track team possible, financially.

The I Club has been fortunate in having officers of high caliber to direct its affairs, and to them belongs a great deal of credit.

LA RUE VAN METER

Athletic Director

Although athletics is a form of play, intercollegiate athletics has many serious aspects that almost seem to obliterate the element of play. Yet these serious aspects are most valuable. Endurance and skill, strength and speed come as dividends of hard work. Self-control and determination are basic to athletic success. These qualities become realities only when evidenced in the sternest type of competition. It is tooth to tooth and jaw to jaw, yet controlled conflict. Only real men can enjoy this conflict. The "Blueboy Spirit" asks no quarter, glories in "tough going," honors the opponent.

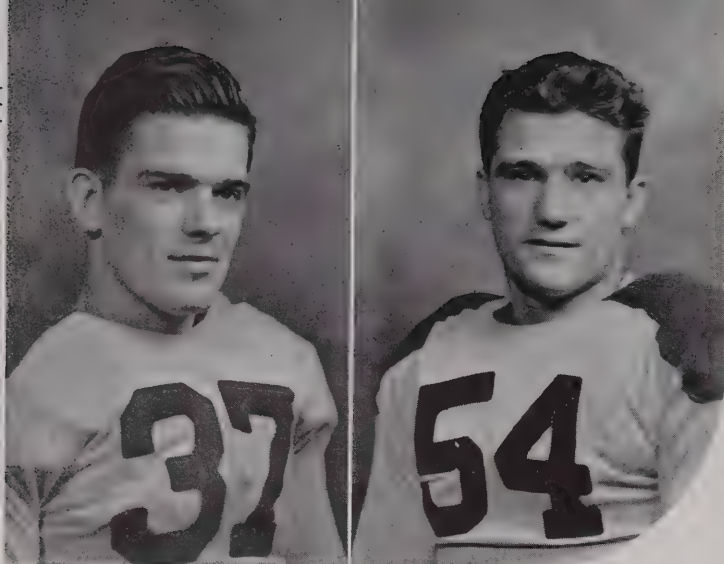

ALFRED LAMB

Assistant Coach

The part that athletics play in college life is an important one, both to the participator and the college itself. This fact has been felt more keenly this year than at any other time within the past decade, for we have enjoyed an unusual degree of success in the field of sports.

For my part it has been a great pleasure to work with such capable and loyal athletes with the support and backing of the student body.

The 1937 Blueboy Football squad brought one of the most successful seasons of recent years to the campus by bringing a conference championship in the newly formed Illinois College Conference, while winning seven of the contests on their nine game schedule.

Prospects for next year are exceedingly bright, also, as a strong group of veterans, led by Co-Captains Elect McWard and Hartong, will return for the 1938 season. Other lettermen expected to bolster next year's eleven include Lipe, Trost, Mader, Bluthardt, DiCenso, Lambert, Israel, Wilton, Parks and Hopper.

However, the squad suffered severe losses by the graduation of such fine backs as Donat, Mangieri and Fletcher, and linemen Jones, Ballard, Prorise, Wafler and Clem. Coaches Van Meter and Lamb will have to look a long time before finding material to fill the places of these men.

BASKETBALL

With only three veterans returning from last year's basketball squad, Coach La Rue Van Meter had to bring his new material along slowly with the result that the Illinois basketeers did not flash their usual form until late in the season, when they began hanging up victories with their usual regularity.

Co-Captains Vergil and Cecil Fletcher along with Ira Scott formed a nucleus of former letter winners. Around these three Van Meter built his squad composed of Bellatti, Moxon, Yates, Taylor, Dawson, Daily, Adolphson, Lukeman and Thompson.

BASEBALL

Coach Lamb has one of the largest squads ever to report for baseball at Illinois College from which to pick the 1938 nine.

Although the loss of Kline, Reay, Mattson, Miles and Scheffler will be keenly felt, the lettermen available, combined with a promising group of freshmen, should live up to past standards of Blueboy teams.

The pitching staff has Lambert, Amidei, Leach and Evans from last year's hurlers as well as Berline, a newcomer. The infield will show an almost entirely new group with Mangieri and DiCenso, the only veterans, bolstered by Buttenob, Isringhausen, Cheparek, Dalton, Hawkins, Powell, and Heaton.

Ira Clark, 1938 co-captain with Evans, will be behind the plate, and will rely upon Heaton and Hawkins for relief duty.

Veteran outfielders include Zupsich, Evans and Dawson, while the newcomers are McNeely, Keropian, Sullivan and Bowman.

A full schedule includes seven conference games and four warmup foes. The full schedule is as follows:

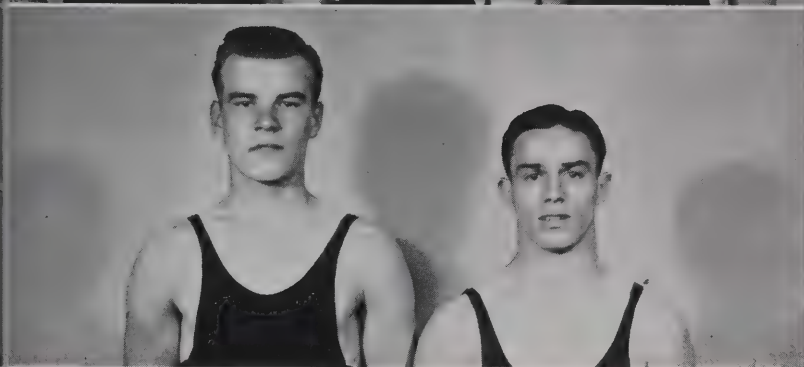

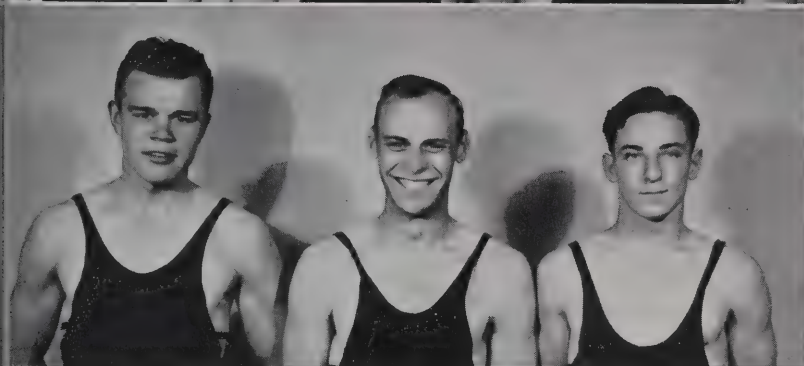

Apr. 15	Washington University (St. Louis)	May 7	Wheaton
Apr. 16	St. Louis University	May 10	St. Louis University
Apr. 19	Principia	May 12	Millikin

SWIMMING

For the fourth consecutive year the Illinois College swimming team returned home with the conference championship in 1938. After having had a poor season in so far as dual meets were concerned, the Blueboys came back to win the first conference title of the newly formed Illinois College Conference. Beset with numerous mishaps and difficulties, and losing to Washington U., DePauw, Indiana U., Loyola, and Grinnell, the Illinois squad pulled themselves together to score wins over Quincy Y. M. C. A., Monmouth, Knox and Bradley. At the conference meet the Blueboys pulled the title out of the fire in a thrilling finish that saw three senior men, Freeman, Stucka, and Bennett, swim their last race for Illinois College. The laurel wreaths rest easily upon their brows.

Standing: Murray, Magee, Clem, Peabody, Kostanski, Yates, V. Fletcher, Yeager.
Kneeling: Mgr. Munger, Winterbottom, Vanderburg, Maddox, Edfors, Norris, Taylor, Moore.

TRACK

After a month of worrying the I. C. lads found that it was possible to have a track team, and everyone fell to with a will. It took no time at all before the track had been leveled off by all those interested, and then the advance guard took over the field under the tutelage of Ray Smith.

Captain Howard Clem led out Vergil Fletcher, Vergil Vandenburg, Jim Norris, and Jim Taylor as the remains of last year's strong team. With the help of Kostanski, Magee, and Yates, all promising first year men on the squad, the team ran away with the first meet of the season, a triangular affair with Springfield Junior College and Hannibal-LaGrange. In this encounter the octet mentioned above showed that it could be counted on for many a first place. Illinois College has high hopes for the track team.

The balance of the schedule shows many fine meets to be held.

April 28	Monmouth
May 3	Carthage
May 7	Principia
May 14	Millikin
May 21	State Meet at Galesburg

TENNIS

With four of the five lettermen returning from last season, the Blueboy racqueteers look forward to a very successful year on the courts.

Last season Hamm and Lukeman won the conference doubles crown, while Clark and Sunderland placed fourth and Lukeman copped third honors in the singles division.

This year, after a very successful training tour through the South, Capt. Sunderland, Lukeman, Hamm, Rammelkamp, and Bellatti are prepared to defend last year's undefeated conference record against competition which will include matches with Bradley, Millikin and Western Teachers, ending with the state meet at Galesburg.

The tennis team is again coached by Prof. J. H. Stratton.

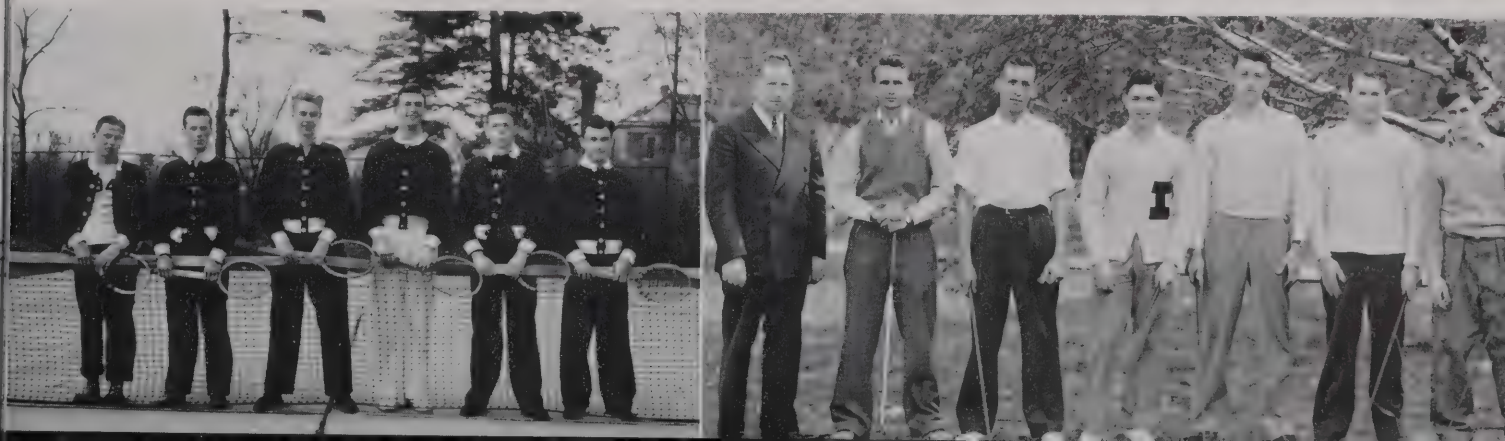

GOLF

The 1938 Illinois College golf team hopefully anticipates an extensive schedule arranged by their manager, M. M. Barlow.

A promising group of freshmen add considerable strength to an already imposing array of veteran talent, made up of Doyle, former Little 19 champ, Bolin, Parks and Wiley. The new linksmen include Cope, Reiners, Wentz and Osborne.

The warmup schedule brings the Blueboys up against Springfield Junior College, Gem City Business College, Washington University and Western Teachers. Conference matches will be with Millikin, Knox, and Wesleyan, with the finale at the State Meet of the new conference at Galesburg May 27-28.

FRESHMAN ATHLETICS

Freshman Coach Ray Smith made his debut as a college coach by training some fine material for next year's varsity squads. This was Ray Smith's first year coaching and yet he showed that in future years he will be turning out some fine athletes for Illinois College.

In freshman football last fall, the Smithmen gave the Varsity eleven several stiff practice sessions. Unfortunately, the frosh only had two games on their schedule, beating Millikin and dropping a game to Wesleyan. Kostanski, Alred, Yates, Dick Shirvis, and Ursic showed the greatest promise.

In basketball the frosh came through with a fairly successful season, splitting even in twelve games. The standout games of the season were victories over Wesleyan, Millikin, and Hannibal-LaGrange. Gumble, Personnett, and Berline will probably give the varsity men a fine battle next year.

ISABEL THOMPSON

The highest tribute that can be paid to one's teacher is to say that we respect her, admire her, and count her as our friend. Surely every girl, in fact, all of Illinois College cannot deny that this is our tribute to Isabel Thompson.

Under her winning guidance the Women's Athletic Department has established an enviable place, not on our campus alone, but throughout the state. It is a foregone conclusion that only great things can come from such a great teacher.

HOCKEY

Hockey, always a popular sport among the girls, this year was at its height. The girls practiced every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons on the Women's Athletic Field. In October a class tournament, under the direction of J. Rantz, manager, was run off with the sophomores finally emerging as victors.

Horseback riding was again included in the women's athletic program this year. Under the direction of Helen Kitner, the girls learned riding technique, care of horses and riding equipment. Classes were held six weeks in the spring and fall, one hour a week being devoted to lecture and demonstration, and one hour to practice riding.

Twenty-two girls, under the leadership of Miss Thompson, coach, and Mary Heflin, manager, were divided into three basketball teams. These teams played a "round-robin" tournament throughout the season and then an elimination tournament. The "Sure-shots" and "Ballyhoos" tied for first place. In February the Illinois College girls defeated Millikin in four games and then defeated Carthage at Carthage.

Seated: Fitzjarrell, B. Rantz, J. Heflin, Breckinridge, Dycus, Grone, Schroeder, Lane.
Standing: J. Rantz, Norbury, Kitner, Denny, Stephenson, Spontz, Crump, Powell, M. Heflin.

GOLF

This spring, golf, a comparatively new women's intramural sport, grew to be one of the most popular activities. Several veteran golfers, as well as a number of beginners, reported for practice.

The women's varsity tennis team completed last year's season with the loss of but two meets. The doubles team of M. Heflin and Kitner won the State Doubles Championship and M. Thompson placed third in singles. This year, the ladder tournament throughout the year determined the players' ranking. No. 1, Kitner; No. 2, M. Heflin; No. 3, Lane; No. 4, J. Heflin; No. 5, Crump.

SONNET

This lovely poem is going to be a sonnet,
With fourteen lines of sentiment and beauty.
(Don't argue, I have set my mind uponnet;
Don't plead, for I am bound to do my deauty.)
The subject? Well, most sonnets tell of women,
Or nature, like "the sunset's rosy blush,"
Or crystal lakes that bashful lovers swomen.
I guess the subject doesn't matter mush.
The first eight lines shall rime a, b, a, b,
With couplets for the final six. You see
With this change the verse would be ill-gotten,
For that's the way a sonnet must be wrotten.
O.K. Let's go: "She stood there, broken hearted . . ."
My gosh! That's all! And I ain't even started.

BILL CLARK.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE

Unique In Its Service

This is not a sales talk . . . you who subscribe to the Rig know Illinois College.

This, instead, is a challenge.

A challenge to you to search behind the facts . . . behind what you know of Old Illinois.

It is seldom, is it not, that you find a college offering this unique combination:

Highest scholastic standards.

Extremely moderate costs . . .

. . . two extremes . . . so often opposites . . . bridged at Illinois College only by the idealism and untiring efforts of the college's leaders.

Dearest Margaret, "Mong"

I shall always value your friendship as one of the most sincere in college.
Remember the time we went to the shows, our long chats, the trips to Litchfield (the flat line) - oh! there are too many things to mention, but we can't forget them! Don't forget that sometime we may go to the Philippines and teach. Wouldn't that be fun. "Mong" you're a swell girl and I'm happy that you came to D.C. and lived as sisters to us all. How about a trip to the "T" store???
Back of luck, honey, you'll have it.

Love,
"Marty"

Autographs

Dear Marg.

you've made the last few weeks of this year the happiest that I've ever known. we had our ups and downs but every thing is straightened out now and I hope it will always stay that way. We won't get to see much of each other for a while but it won't make any difference in the way I feel. It will take wild horses to keep me out of Brook. It may be a while before I get ~~there~~ but you wait for me.

With my Love,

Charley

Dear Mary,

I hate to say

Goodbye, even though I realize that this probably goodby. But I do want you to know that I have enjoyed having you as a friend very much;

I am very glad that you

moved into the "dorm"

last year otherwise I may never have known what a really swell person you are

I hope you can secure a position

this summer as I know that you will make an excellent teacher.

A world of success and happiness to you, honey, don't forget us. Love Catherine

Dear Mary!
Well we're ready to split our 2
years of friendship, living together but it will always last. You've been swell to me & I think your O.K. I think we have a lot in common. (Some day I'll explain)
we had swell times working at Baxter. I still think you don't look like any other girl the way he looks at you. A world of luck honey. Love
Mary Alice

Good Luck to you and may be you'll make up your mind
sometime
Best Wishes
Kay

Dear Mary:
Many of my happiest
college memories have you as a part of them. Ever since the time I first saw you I liked you but I can say that I really didn't know you until this year. Remember the classes we've been in together,
the shows we saw, the fun
we've had but most of all remember the grand talks we've had. I will always regret that this time of parting ever had to come because I'm going to miss you terribly, Mary. May every blessing be with you!

Love,
Virginia

Dear Mary:

Well, I'm still wondering
if you will ever fall in love.
Remember how disgusted you used to get with me. But certainly enjoyed living in the same house with you and I'm sure that we have all acquired memories in the last two years that will stay with us always. I hope that we can all meet again some time and have a good old bull session. But I must certainly say you were the best of hosts! Here's to Springfield. Nothing like this. Be good Mary, and good luck.
Sally,
Ellie.

Dear Er -

I may have seemed awfully upset at you about certain affairs on certain occasions - but I love you anyway. You and I have had some perfectly marvelous times together and I never forget any of them. Come back next year and spend your weekends with me - there may be several other people in with me, but you'll be home in any space you can find. Don't forget me and break down and write me once in a while -

Sally -
